Notice of Filing of Application
For Permanent Employment Certification

This notice is being provided as a result of the filing of an application for permanent alien labor certification for the job opportunity described below. Any person may provide documentary evidence bearing on the application to Floyd Goodman, Certifying Officer, U. S. Department of Labor, Employment and Training Administration, Harris Tower, 233 Peachtree Street, NE., Suite 410, Atlanta, Georgia 30303; (404) 893-0101 telephone; (404) 893-4642 fax.

Assistant Professor (Tenure Track) - Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, New York - Teach undergraduate and graduate courses in structural engineering and pursue department and university service activities as assigned; Advise, mentor and train undergraduate and graduate students in structural engineering; Develop graduate courses in the area of structural engineering/computational mechanics; Develop and conduct a sponsored research program directed toward the development of computational mechanics techniques to model structural and material failure and to analyze the response of structural systems subjected to manmade or natural hazard loads; Present theoretical, numerical and experimental results in national and international scientific conferences, workshops, and committees. Reqs: Ph.D in Structural Engineering or closely allied field, with substantial research accomplishments in aforementioned research area, and demonstrated exceptional potential for outstanding research and teaching. Send resumes to Professor Ricardo Dobry, Search Committee Chair, Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, 110 Eighth Street, Troy, New York 12180-3590 (dobryr@rpi.edu).