OPTIONAL PRACTICAL TRAINING
FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS ON AN F-1 VISA

Practical training is defined as employment directly related to your major areas of study. Students in F-1 status must have been enrolled full-time for one academic year before becoming eligible for practical training.

A student in F-1 status may apply for optional practical training:

- During annual vacation and at other times when school is not in session and if the student is currently enrolled and eligible, and intends to register for the next semester. The practical training may be full or part-time.
- When school is in session, provided that practical training does not exceed 20 hours per week.
- After completion of all requirements for the degree (excluding thesis or dissertation). The practical training must be full-time.
- After completion of the course of study.

Optional practical training is limited to a total of 12 months. Part-time pre-completion optional practical training, 20 hours per week or less, shall be deducted from the available optional practical training at one-half the full-time rate (but you have to be registered full-time).

A student may be authorized for an additional 12 months of practical training when he/she changes to and completes a higher level of education. (Example: M.S. and then Ph.D.)

Any optional practical training granted prior to completion of studies shall be deducted from the amount of practical training available after graduation. Therefore, you must carefully consider your goals before applying for optional practical training.

Optional practical training is recommended by the ISSS Office and authorized by the DHS. This means that you must send in your application to DHS and pay a $380.00 fee to obtain your employment authorization document (EAD).

If the optional practical training is to begin following completion of a degree, application can be made 90 days before completion of a degree or 60 days after graduation. During this period, you must obtain both the recommendations from the ISSS Office and the employment authorization documents (EAD) from the DHS.

If you are traveling outside the US while on practical, training you will need your EAD Card and a valid letter of employment PRIOR to reentering the US.

Employment may not commence until you have obtained your EAD.
